Not Bad To Take

When the moon has four phases and is divided into four quarters, each quarter bring different in quantity—when the moon gets full once each four weeks and loses three quarters of itself in getting to the sobriety of a new moon—when the sun and the moon are both on the same side of the earth at the same time—why should the earth cast reflections on the moon?

HORN BLOWING

The road hog machine driver is practically an extinct animal at the present time. No longer does he take the middle of the road and blow his horn as a warning to all others that he is coming—get out of the way or take the consequences. It is a noticeable fact that drivers of Flivvers have rarely if ever developed into road hogs. It has largely been after our bank roll has grown to such proportions that we do not know how else to reduce it except by purchasing a Fierce-Sparrow or some other machine with a big price attachment even if its real value is no greater, that our snout begins to protrude and our bristles begin to grow and we feel our importance in the world to be so consequential that the rest of the world must make way for us.

It is also a source of great relief to the majority of machine drivers that the "Blow Your Horn" sign no longer screams out from the roadside at every curve to distract attention from the business of driving in such a manner as to endanger safety for self and others along the highways. The yellow and black signs of the State Auto Association—"Danger, Curves, Slow"—are much more effective as a safeguard, because a man can read these at a glance while using both hands to keep his machine under perfect control, governing his speed according to the conditions indicated by the sign instead of being compelled to guide the machine with one hand while he hunts the horn with the other.

Not only is it more agreeable to a driver, insuring greater safety to himself and to others, it eliminates the wrangling, snapping exchanges between drivers rounding a curve which usually ran something like this: "Why didn't you blow your horn?" "I did! Why didn't you blow yours?" "I did." "Well, I didn't hear you." "Neither did I hear you." All of which goes to indicate that unless a machine is equipped with a horn of the caliber of a steam locomotive whistle, it is rarely that an approaching driver can hear it above the noise made by his own engine, no matter how still running it may be.

And all this brings us to the point—the point in which life makes it seem imperative that we consider the rights of others equal to those we consider our own and accede to others the same privileges we ask for ourselves.

There are road hogs in business not unlike the road hog machine driver. There are road hogs in politics, in school life, in religion, in social life, though it is consoling, yes, pleasing and gratifying to note that each year their number diminishes in the same manner as does the road hog.

When one retrospectively glances back over the past, even a decade ago and considers for a moment the horn blowers of the various activities of life, the methods employed to drive others out that we could get in and have the whole road to ourselves, when we think of the petty things we could do in those days to win from the other fellow—not by merit, but by arrogating to ourselves an importance so great that the other fellow was scared into abandoning his half of the road to make room for us in order to save himself from being crashed into, bumped, perhaps smashed to pieces, it is decidedly proper that we congratulate ourselves on the fact that we are each day drawing nearer the time when we will all consider that perhaps the other fellow does have rights in the world which it is our duty to consider, to grant in the same degree of unselfishness we demand in the consideration from others of our own rights.

And all this brings us to the spirit—the spirit of COMMUNITY UNITED. When one rivets his whole attention on the upbuilding of the community of which he is an integral part, he has no time to spend in trying to tear down what another part of the community is doing, or vice versa. When a community is united in all forward movements, works as a unit for the benefit of the whole, each individual unit must as a natural consequence participate in those benefits to a degree guaranteeing all that is necessary for subsistence, comfort, social pleasure, good fellowship and everything that contributes to the real enjoyment of existence.

And when this is attained, what more can we ask? We can take nothing with us when we depart this life and why should we take from the other fellow what is his while here under the pretext that it is business to keep all you get and get all you can?

There is room enough in the community, in every community of the whole world, for each and every individual, when live and let live forms the principle of life and each man—each traveler on the road of life will find no need for Horn Blowing when each keeps to his own side of the road while following the straight course or rounding the curves on the journey of life from the cradle to the River Styx.

WANT NEW HIGHWAY

This end of the county expressed its wish for new highways at Tuesday's election in the most emphatic manner. Boulder Creek cast 179 votes—all "yes" but one. The fellow who voted that one vote "no" must feel mighty lonesome. It is more than likely that it was a mistake, due to too urgent demands on his time that made a slip of the ballot marker. It is likely that if another vote was to be taken that one "no" would be missing when the ballots were counted.

Ben Lomond deposited 108 ballots and every one of them said "yes" which indicates how well the road already in use between Ben Lomond and Felton is appreciated. Brookdale's vote is included with that of Ben Lomond as the two are one voting precinct, so it is easy to know where Brookdale stands on the matter.

Let us have the road completed to Boulder Creek before the opening of next season—and the state road connection for Big Basin—and then see what a demand there will be for accommodations for travelers in the San Lorenzo Valley.

PREPARING FOR SCHOOL

The work of getting things in readiness for the opening of school is going on at both the high and grammar school buildings. A new shed for wood is being erected at the high school, plans for new manual training quarters are being made, a floor for the Community print shop is contemplated and the grounds around both buildings are being cleaned up and made as presentable as can be.

B. C. I. C. PLANNING

A COMMUNITY EVENING

At the meeting of the Boulder Creek Improvement Club held in the library last Monday evening the committees previously appointed were for the most part continued as sufficient time had not been available to enable thorough reports to be made.

The matter of electric lights for the main street was discussed again but the conclusion was general that the matter could not be brought to a reality without knowing just to what extent the town as a whole would back up such a proposition with the financial aid necessary to carry it through.

It was thought that the matter should be thoroughly considered by all non-members as well as members, and in the hope of getting the matter properly discussed it has been decided to hold a meeting in the near future to be known as "Community Evening" with a general invitation to the public to attend and participate in the discussion of this matter, the meeting to be followed with refreshments.

Boulder Creek surely needs an Improvement Club and the club, in order to accomplish the purpose for which such a club is organized, needs the aid of the community and this means every one who lives in or has an interest in the town.

It takes self-denial and a lot of real hard work to bring results in an undertaking of this character and the larger the number who will put their shoulders to the wheel and help push the sooner the greater will be the accomplishments of the organization. There is no place along the coast of Central California where seashore and mountains are so closely united as right here in Santa Cruz county, and with the new highways being opened to travel the accessibility of an unsurpassed resort opens the way for Boulder Creek and the other communities of the San Lorenzo valley, but unless an united effort is made to have some way of entertaining people who visit the region there is little chance of extensive patronage.

Lack of interest is one of the things that every forward movement has had to contend with for ages. It is so easy to let a few do the work until the hardest is done and success assured before united effort can be secured. But when the work does get under way and the efforts of the few begin to bring results by winning recognition on its merits, then all turn boosters and things goes on swimmingly.

It will be the same here as it has been in hundreds of other communities and we have no doubt but that before another year has passed the club will have occasion to feel exceedingly proud of the work it has accomplished.

Let us all keep our eyes open for the big night—Community Night, which will be held some night in the near future and make it the real beginning for bigger and better things for Boulder Creek and vicinity than the town has ever known in the past. Mrs. Woodard, secretary of the club, will be clad to receive communications for the club, or phone messages to telephone No. 26-R.

Community Mention.

Just as we were about ready to go to press with this issue of Community word was received that Dr. Hoag had been hurriedly called to Ben Lomond to attend some one who had been shot there yesterday [Friday] forenoon. It was impossible to get particulars in time for this issue.

SEQUOIA ITEMS

Sequoia school opened last Monday with Mrs. E. J. Crawford as teacher. Miss Gertrude Johansen returned home recently from the University Summer school. She will remain home until her school in Santa Cruz opens.

Mr. La Verne Culbertson, former teacher of Sequoia, spent two days deer hunting the first of the week.

E. J. Crawford's house had a narrow escape from burning down the latter part of last week. Mrs. Crawford saw smoke coming from the roof and called to the hay-baling crew that was luckily close at hand. These men spent an hour's hard work in subduing the flames which were confined to the roof. About half of the roof must be replaced.

NEWLY MADE ODD FELLOWS

Ten new Odd Fellows were put through the intricacies of the third degree at the Hall of Boulder Creek Lodge No. 152, last Saturday evening, nine of whom were added to the membership of the local lodge and one of Santa Cruz. Visiting brothers were present from Watsonville, Santa Cruz and Soquel. After the degree work was completed a fine dinner was served in the banquet hall with seventy covers served. Attorney E. C. Rittenhouse, of Santa Cruz, was toastmaster and it was a very enjoyable evening for all present. The visitors came by auto and returned to their respective homes after the festivities of the evening came to a close.

FIRE NEAR BOULDER CREEK

On Saturday, Aug. 6, a brush fire broke out on the trail leading to observation point near Ben Lomond Mountain. It was put out in a short time. On Sunday the fire grew bigger and some men went up about ten o'clock Monday morning and the fire was put out. The cause of the fire is not known.

BOY HIT BY AUTO.

While returning from Santa Cruz Thursday of last week, A. H. Townsend collided with a Whitney boy, grandson of Elisha Brooks, Ben Lomond, knocking him down and quite badly bruising him. A machine driven by Miss Cole stopped on the south side of the long bridge between Ben Lomond and Felton and just as the machine driven by Mr. Townsend was about two thirds of the distance past the standing machine, young Whitney dodged from the rear of the machine in front of Mr. Townsend's. So quickly was it all done that no one could tell just how. The boy was hit on the arm and knocked down, but aside from bruises his hurts were of small moment. No bones—not even the skin was broken and he was able to continue the trip to Santa Cruz.

There is no head to a Round Table—all equal—one in equality. What better could happen to Community—the community, than to work the Round Table Degree?

INSECTS MAKE LEAVES 'WALK'

Queer Creatures Responsible for Odd Belief That Has Long Been Held in Australia.

There are some strange leaves in Australia which the people used to think could walk alone. Whenever there came a gust of wind these queer leaves blew off in a perfect shower. As leaves generally do, they turned over and over, and rested upon the ground. Then they would seem to crawl toward the trunk of the tree from which they fell. Since that time it has been found that these leaves, as they were thought to be, were real insects and lived upon those very trees. Their bodies are thin and flat and their wings veined, just like a leaf. If they are disturbed their legs, which are folded away under their bodies, leave their whole shape exactly like the leaf of a tree, with stem and all. Bright green in the summer, these singular little insects, chameleon-like, slowly change their color to a dingy brown, just like a leaf that has been frosted. It is strange that, with wings, they do not fly, but rather walk or crawl along the ground.

BEN LOMOND NEWS

Mrs. E. L. Bonestell and Miss Eileen Bonestell, who have been spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bradshaw, returned to Oakland last Sunday, making the trip by auto. They were accompanied by Mrs. R. T. Lyng, who is spending a few days with relatives and friends in San Francisco. Mr. Bradshaw returned home Tuesday.

Thursday of last week Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bradshaw returned from a thousand mile auto trip to Reno, Nevada, where they visited Mr. Bradshaw's mother, Mrs. A. W. Holmes, for ten days, who accompanied them home for a short visit.

Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Conger and Mrs. Smith, who are sojourning in Ben Lomond for a few weeks, spent Wednesday in Boulder Creek where a delightful picnic dinner was enjoyed at the High School building with the editor of Community as the guest of special attention from all the ladies.

Ben Lomond's vote for the highway bonds numbered 108 with not a dissenting vote in the lot. Now, the quicker we get to riding on the finished road the better satisfied we will be.

The lecture by Mrs. Rhinehart at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday was very largely attended.

Last Sunday was Mrs. B. Dickinson's birthday and on Monday Miss Helen Cole and Mrs. Whitney gave a birthday party in her honor, with a dinner at Sunhaven and a campfire in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Brooks. About twenty-five guests were in attendance and the day and evening were most enjoyable.

Mrs. Elisha Brooks and her daughter, Mrs. Whitney, gave a delightful party to a number of friends on the lawn of the Brooks' home Tuesday afternoon.

Albert Westgate, a big rancher of Stockton, spent the week-end with his family in Ben Lomond, returning to Stockton Sunday.

Bart Lauffer of Stockton, who has been a guest of the Westgate home for a week, returned to Stockton with Mr. Westgate Sunday.

Miss Emma Cole entertained a party of friends at her summer home, Wistaria, yesterday afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. Knowles spent last week visiting friends and relatives in Alameda.

Mrs. Newell and daughter have returned to Stockton after a delightful sojourn with Mrs. Newell's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Knowles.

SURPRISE FOR MRS. KOBER TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Jacob Kober was delightfully surprised last Monday in honor of her birthday by the arrival of automobiles containing the Santa Cruz Beach Band of thirty pieces and sixty dinner guests. It was a gala day in Ben Lomond. The band was most generous with its selections and a wide range of music was a treat for Ben Lomond. Particularly captivating were the cornet solos rendered by a recent arrival from Australia. A wonderful dinner was cooked and served by Mrs. Kober, and thoroughly enjoyed by the guests. Before their departure tea was also served and the departing visitors left a tired but perfectly happy hostess.

ABOUT SUNFLOWERS

Much is said about the sunflower producers of Saskatchewan, how the fields look like big flower gardens where they are used as feed for cattle, poultry, etc., and how they grow to be 16 feet tall, but all this is no better than can be done right here in Ben Lomond. Miss A. L. Mac Menus has a plot of sunflowers at Crows Nest of mammoth growth, some of them measuring several inches over the sixteen feet recorded from the Prince Albert growth.

QUAINT

In a quaint little house
In a quaint little town
Lived a quaint little miss
With a quaint little gown
And this quaint little miss
From this quaint little town
Went one day to a big "live" town.
And what she saw made her stand aghast,
When she viewed her sex with dress half-mast.

Then this quaint little miss
From this quaint little town
Went back home to settle down,
But the big "live" town had left its lure
On this quaint little miss who was quite demure.
And the dress at which she stood aghast,
Was the self-same style she wore at last.

From this quaint little town
And this quaint little miss
We garner a moral that runs like this:
"If in a quaint little town you'd be happy and gay,
From the big "live" town you must stay away.
And if your style is put to a test
It's the quaint little town that you'll love best."

lucky number that wins the lot. If the ticket with the same number is not presented within five days the second ticket drawn will be the lucky number—and in like manner, third, fourth, fifth, etc., until a ticket is drawn whose duplicate is presented corresponding number.

BAGGED TWO DEER

Hugo Weissinger of San Francisco is the proud possessor of two pairs of fine antlers secured in the mountains of Monterey county, and one of the wearers of the horns was distributed among the hunters of Ben Lomond. Some one asks: "Can't some Ben Lomond boy send Mr. Weissinger a piece of venison for his Sunday dinner?"

BROOKDALE BUDGET

The hotel orchestra that has been here during the summer has finished its entertainments and gone. But we still have music for a new orchestra has been organized to take the place of the one gone and some people say they like it even better than the first one.

Additions, repairs and improvements are going on in many sections of the Brookdale Resort and carpenters are kept busy each day of the week. Brookdale has had one of its most prosperous seasons and the number of people still here indicates that the end of the season is still in the future.

Brookdale's vote on the good roads bonds Tuesday indicates the desire of the people of the village to have the roads completed at the earliest date possible. The beauty spots in and around Brookdale are well worth building good roads to make them more accessible to people seeking one of the most delightful mountain retreats to be found in a day's travel.

BROOKDALE CLUB PARTY

The Brookdale club held another of its delightful card parties on the Island Tuesday afternoon. It was not only largely attended by Brookdale people but there was a goodly delegation from Boulder Creek in attendance who participated in the games. The party netted $34.00 for the fire protection fund and the attendance of people from Boulder Creek was greatly appreciated. These parties are held each Tuesday afternoon during the season and it is proving a most enjoyable means of raising funds for the protection of the community from fire.
